

Question 3.28

Topic: Use of Three-dimensional Probe for Methods 2F and 2H

Question: If we use a three-dimensional probe for Method 2F, must we use a three-dimensional probe for the WAF measurements under Method 2H?

Answer: No. You may, for example, use a Type-S pitot tube to measure the wall effects.

References: 40 CFR Part 60, Appendix A, Methods 2F and 2H

History: First published in March 2000, Update #12; revised in October 2003
Revised Manual